news from the scene of the insurrection. He says there were no indications of hostilities when the schooner left port. The United States men-of-war Ossipee and Kearsarge were in the vicinity of Cape Hayti, the latter having arrived on June 25, escorting the American steamer Caroline Miller. The Ossipee, which had just brought about the release of the American steamer Ozama, left a day or two before the William Jones in the wake of the Clyde line steamer George W. Clyde. The Ossipee made sure that the Clyde reached St. Marc and Consives with molestation.

Hippolyte, Captain Hounslea said, had LONDON, July 6 .- [Copyright.] -- Gladstone was in fine form to-day, at Sir Edward Reed's, in Hartington Gardens. He went there to have the freedom of the city of Cardiff presented to him, made a fine speech to the Mayor, and then sat down to lunch with about 40 guests. The Grand Old Man has Hippolyte, Captain Hounsles said, had his army of 4,000 men encamped midway between St. Marc and Conaives. The northern general's objective point was Port-au-Prince, which was still in control of Legitime. Hippolyte, the captain said, and the information came direct from one of only one idea, and, of course, talked about Ireland when the lunch was over. His speech was unusually fine, and was applauded with especial vigor by the 20 women present. An interesting point was when he alluded to the comfort which he derived from the northern leader's lieutenants, was fear-ful of entering Port-au-Prince with his full army, lest his warriors should become un-manageable at the sight of the opportunithe support of fair-minded nations, and particularly of the United States. Unfortunatly, a certain imbecile class of weak-minded, toadying Americans who came to manageable at the sight of the opportuni-ties to pillage the capital. Hippolyte cal-culated to secure possession of Port-au-Prince by stratagem. He counted upon surrounding the city at night, overcoming the enemy's guards and taking Legitime a prisoner, with a few of his trusted followers. Two o Hippolyte's gunboats, Ajax and Carmelalet, left Hayti for Conaives the day before the Jones left port. The latter was London, spend their time assuring their Tory friends that America cares nothing about home rule, and that respectable Americans have no sympathy with the Irisb. These poor trash Americans, whose instincts point to the presence of some English flunky, butler or footman among their immediate ancestors, have been quoted in the House of Commons by Balfour and before the Jones left port. The latter was in a very unseaworthy condition. The cap-tain observed that Hippolyte's war vessels treated all the American vessels entering Cape Hayti with great respect. When his schooner entered the harbor the colors of the Haytian men-of-war were dropped re-peatedly in recognition of the Stars and Stripes at the schooner's masthead. others to support the Tory side. ENOUGH TO MAKE HIM PROUD. At luncheon to-day Mr. Gladstone said he was proud to be able to prove that good Americans did support himself and his friends. He drew from his pocket an enaddress, expressing support, and signed by the Governor, executive officers judges and Legislature of the State of Illi There was much applause at this, especially from two Americans from Illinois who were present, Mrs. John A. Logan and Miss Florence Pullman. Mrs. Logan assured your correspondent that she felt as though she must say something, and also that Mr. Gladstone was not only a mighty great but a mighty wonderful man. Mrs. Logan, as every American knows, can tell a great man when she sees him.

Mr. Smith Barry, of whom mention was made last week, seems at length to be aware that he made a great mistake in forming a landlord syndicate in opposition to the plan of the campaign, but he is loth to admit that he has made a fool of himselt. A deputation of his Irish tenants waited upon him this week, in London, and told him some valuable truths, in vigorous language.

A VERY ENERGETIC TIME in which Smith Barry swore very much, vowing he didn't care whether his tenants paid rent or not. It is now open war between the landlords' syndicate, of which Barry is President, and William O'Brien and the plan of campaign. That the latter will win, no one need doubt, and probably Barry is as well aware of the fact as any-

The equanimity of the House of Commons has been sorely tried this week by two most unusual incidents. On Tuesday night an enthusiastic Irishman in the strangers' gallery called upon the amazed legislators to give three cheers for William O'Brien. Fortunately, Speaker Peel happened to be in a good humor, and simply ordered the daring patriot to be ejected, which was vigorously done by several policemen. The other incident was almost as appalling, for nitors and to pop her hand inside bis doors, and actually stood on the floor of the House. The law provides that women vis-iting the House shall sit behind a grating; they are not even allowed places in the open gallery, a rule which even Mrs. Gladstone or the Speaker's wife would not dream of violating. And here was

AN UNKNOWN FEMALE actually among the legislators! The Sergeant-at-Arms made a rush to repel such an unheard-of attack on the constitution, but the young woman, who from her small feet

Ehould have been an American, had fled.

The proceedings of the special committee have been deeply interesting this week, thanks to the appearance of Michael Davitt in the witness box. It was cheer ul to hear Davitt. He not only talked boldly, as might have been expected, about Ireland's right to take up arms for her rights, if necessary, but at the risk of injuring his own case, he stuck to his friend, Ford, and defended him. Webster devoted two days of cross-examination to a useless attempt to get the better of his plain-spoken autagonist, and President Hannen showed that Davitt's pluck had impressed him and manifested in is rulings a wonderful fairness, almos partiality for Davitt, when i came to the latter's turn to cross-examine.

Northern Visitors to the Big Fight Run the Gauntlet of a Lynching Party.

PEPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. NEW ORLEANS, July 6 .- A number of Northern intending visitors to the Sullivan-Kilrain fight, who arrived here this morning by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, had an experience just above Meridian last night which they are not likely to forget in a hurry. Among the passengers were four negroes, brothers, who formerly lived at Meridian, and who killed seven white men in an election fracas there four years ago. They escaped and went to St. Louis, where they married and settled down. A Missis-sippi constable heard of their whereabouts, got a requisition for them, and arrested them in St. Louis on the 4th of July.

them in St. Louis on the 4th of July.*

Word was telegraphed to the conductor of the train that a force of armed men would intercept his train for the purpose of taking the negroes off and lynching them, and he was ordered not to stop until he got to Meridian. The negroes were locked in a baggage car, and the baggagemaster got in the cab of the engine, with the engineer and firemen. All the passengers in the care, including those in the sleeper, were made to lie down on the floors of the cars at a given signal—four blasts from the engine whistle—and the train dashed by the station at full speed. As it did several volleys were fired at it by the crowd in waiting.

AN ACCIDENT

The large sign-board of the Half Century liquor house of John McCullough, 523 Liberty street, fell from the upper story of the building last Thursday. Suggests an Idea.

The Legislative Committee of the Chamber of Commerce met yesterday afternoon to take action relative to the International American Congress, to be held October 2. 1889, at Washington. Hon. John Dalzell, Hon. T. M. Bayne, Hon. B. F. Jones and J. C. Sebenick had been invited to attend the meeting. Colonel Bayne was the only one, however, to respond to the request. Chairman George A. Anderson read the let-ter from Hon. James G. Blaine, Secretary of State, asking the body to give their attention to the proposed Congress, and of-fer all the suggestions and plans they saw fit. Enclosed with the letter was an act putting forth the subjects for discussion at the Congress. The object is to secure unity between the South American States and Southern countries with the United States, in matters of commerce and all other objects which tend to the promotion of prosperity between the American continents. Seven of the points in the act are:
First-The attainment of peace and general Second—The formation of an American Customs Union for the promotion of trade.

Third—The establishment of regular and frequent communication between the ports of the several American States and ports of each GETTING DOWN TO TABIFF. Fourth—The establishment of a uniform sys-tem of customs in each of the independent American States to govern the importation and exportation port dues; a uniform system of invoices, and subject of sanitation of ships and quarantine; the classification and valuation of quaranthe; the classification and valuation of merchandise in the ports of each country. Fifth—The adoption of a uniform system of weights and measures. Sixth—The adoption of a common silver coin, has the following:

For some time there has been a great deal of talk about Harrison running things in his own way without consulting with his party leaders, something as Cleveland did at first. The impression that he had marked out such a policy for himself has been very strong with members of the party who thought he wasn't ready enough to take their advice as to the matter of appointments. It has been much commented on, and there has been considerable feeling of doubt and uncertainty on the part of some of the leading Senators and Representatives. At the conference between the President and Senators Chandler, Allison, Cullom and Dolph, the day of the President's departure for Woodstock, this matter was thoroughly gone over. The Senators were anxious to know just where they were to stand.

They told the President of the current impression, and urged upon him the necessity of the party acting as a party for its own safety and well being. They thought that no important move should be made without party consultation and that the wishes of the leading party men should be considered in the appointments for their sections. The result of the talk was that the Senators discovered that the President agreed with them on this point, and was desirous as well as willing to have the advice of the party leaders. Accordingly they decided upon the caucus to be held in New York. The party leaders understand hereafter they are to have a little more to say as to the affairs of the administration and that their wishes are to be regarded on matters that especially interest them. Each point mentioned in the act embraced many subjects to be covered by the principal object. Chairman Anderson made a short speech touching on the importance of the subject, and advised that the matter be considered slowly and cautiously.

Colonel Bayne delivered an address, and was in favor of the Congress and its objects.

OF REAL MAGNITUDE. Blaine's South American Scheme Unfolded to Pittsburgers.

He stated that the meeting of the representatives was in the interest of all countries, to obtain arbitration and uniform customs duties, matters of much importance; that instead of Europe supplying the trade of the Southern countries, the United States ahould do so, owing to our greater facilities and markets. Colonel Bayne, after reviewing the benefits of reciprocity, said:
"Why not invite the representatives of the various States to visit Western Pennsylvania; let them see our manufactories and our industries; let them report to their Governments what they need of our works, our our plows, locomotives, etc?

WHY NOT LOCK HORNS?

WHY NOT LOCK HORNS? "It is useless to try and build up a foreign trade by subsidizing business. Let us lock horns with theother American States against horns with the other American States against Europe. Canada is anxious to join us, and in the end we will have commercial union for the American Continent."

Chairman Anderson made a few more remarks, stating that the cause for the falling off of our shipping trade must be discovered and remedied. He mentioned that, several years since, the Mexican Minister, in a speech said his country would be surprised at the needed implements used in Mexico, which are imported from Spain.

Several of the points in the act were considered; but the committee, realizing the importance of the meeting, offered no suggestions until further consideration.

Judge Single moved that a sub-committee be appointed to prepare suggestions and offer plans to be presented for the general consideration of the entire committee at the next meeting. The motion was carried, and next meeting. The motion was carried, and the committee appointed consists of Hon. J. F. Slagle, Hon. G. H. Anderson and H. K. Porter. The next meeting will be held upon the call of the Chair.

WHOSAYSTRADEISDULLP

Who, in the face of the big crowds that attended Kaufmanns' $14 fine Suit Sale yesterday, can still take any stock in the theory that business is stagnant after the "Fourth"? What nonsense! How unjustifiable the complaints of the dealers! What conclusive evidence of the fallacy of their stereotyped excuse for their empty stores: "This is our dull season." We believe that, if there is any dullness, it must have its existence in the narrow minds of these old fogy concerns. Shopworn goods, old styles and prices that are away up in "G" are certainly not calculated to attract buyers. But these sleepy clothiers can't or won't see where the shoe pinches them, for instead of making their goods and prices acceptable to an economical public, they make matters worse by losing all courage and permit themselves and their stores to sink into a state of lethargy from which only the advent of the fall season will awaken them. But go on, brethren, with your stage coach methods. If it suits you to "lay off" your employes, instead of keeping them busy by stirring up your trade, nobody (lest the unfortunate salesmen) will object. 'Tis wrong, though, to make "dull times" the scapegoat for your shortsightedness.

Kaufmanns' don't believe in making a graveyard out of their store. The hum of business, the clanking of the wheels of commerce is lovely music to their ears. True, they may often sell goods without any profit, or even at a positive loss, but they have the satisfaction of seeing their business go on serenely, no matter whether it be pleasant May or hot July. Their present sale of Men's fine Dress Suits at $14 proves the correctness of what they say. The anxiety of the purchasers show their appreciation of Kaufmanns' bargains. This wonderful $14 Suit Sale will continue all this week, and, if anything, the values will be better and greater than ever before. Fourteen Dollars will buy your choice this week from several thousand fine Sack and Frock Suits made of such celebrated materials as genuine English Cassimeres and Serges, Scotch Cheviots, French Worsteds and Corkscrews. And these materials (mark you) in all the latest and most popular light and dark patterns. If you but consider that the cheapest suit in the line would cost you $20 elsewhere, you will not be surprised that we are busy, while others are idle.

BESIDES THESE FINE DRESS SUITS AT $14

Kaufmanns' will offer some truly startling bargains in Business and Every Day Suits. Thus, for instance, $12 will buy as good a suit as you can procure elsewhere for $18, while at the popular price of $10 Kaufmanns' will offer over 500 strictly all-wool suits every one of which is worth 50 per cent more money. At $8, $7 and $6 we offer a line of suits which other houses actually advertise as big bargains for $12, $10 and $9. No doubt about it, gentlemen, now is your chance to buy.

The season for selling them is short. We won't wait till you see fit to pay the usual prices. The figures at which we have marked our "light stuffs" are intended to attract purchasers from near and far.

We have them for Ladies, Gentlemen and Children, in a variety so extensive and at prices so low as to make competition an impossibility. All kinds, styles and sizes of the popular tan and russet shoes.

Light Derbys and Straw Hats

You'll make a mistake if you buy a Hat this week before having been at our store. We mean to close out the balance of our light colored Derbys before July 15, and, in order to do it, we have split prices in halves.
